DISTRICT COURT OF SOUTH CAROLINA
CHARLESTON, SC

Plaintiff, proceeding pro se, brings this case pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Plaintiff is an inmate at Kershaw Correction Institution in Kershaw, South Carolina, which is a facility of the South Carolina Department of Corrections (SCDC), and he files this action in forma pauperis under 28 U.S.C. § 1915. Plaintiff complains that he is incarcerated illegally, and requests money damages and release from prison. The complaint should be dismissed pursuant to the rule articulated in Heck v. Humphrey, 512 U.S. 477 (1994).

Pro Se and In Forma Pauperis Review

Under established local procedure in this judicial district, a careful review has been made of the pro se complaint pursuant to the procedural provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 1915; 28 U.S.C. § 1915A; and the Prison Litigation Reform Act (PLRA), Pub. L. No. 104-134, 110 Stat. 1321 (1996). This review has been conducted in light of the following precedents: Denton v. Hernandez, 504 U.S. 25 (1992); Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 324-25 (1989); Haines v. Kerner,

404 U.S. 519 (1972); Nasim v. Warden, Md. House of Corr., 64 F.3d 951 (4th Cir. 1995) (en banc); Todd v. Baskerville, 712 F.2d 70 (4th Cir. 1983). The complaint herein has been filed pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915, which permits an indigent litigant to commence an action in federal court without prepaying the administrative costs of proceeding with the lawsuit. To protect against possible abuses of this privilege, the statute allows a district court to dismiss the case upon a finding that the action "fails to state a claim on which relief may be granted," "is frivolous or malicious," or "seeks monetary relief against a defendant who is immune from such relief." Title 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B). A finding of frivolity can be made where the complaint "lacks an arguable basis either in law or in fact." Denton v. Hernandez, 504 U.S. at 31. Hence, under § 1915(e)(2)(B), a claim based on a meritless legal theory may be dismissed sua sponte. Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319 (1989); Allison v. Kyle, 66 F.3d 71 (5th Cir. 1995). Further, the plaintiff is a prisoner under the definition in 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(c), and "seeks redress from a governmental entity or officer or employee of a governmental entity." 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(a). Thus, even if the plaintiff had prepaid the full filing fee, this court is charged with screening the plaintiff's lawsuit to identify cognizable claims or to dismiss the complaint if (1) it is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted or (2) seeks monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from such relief. 28 U.S.C. § 1915A.

This court is required to liberally construe pro se documents, Erickson v. Pardus, 127 S.Ct. 2197 (2007), holding them to a less stringent standard than those drafted by attorneys. Estelle v. Gamble, 429 U.S. 97 (1976); Hughes v. Rowe, 449 U.S. 9 (1980) (per curiam). Even under this less stringent standard, however, the pro se complaint is subject to summary dismissal. The mandated liberal construction afforded to pro se pleadings means that if the court can reasonably read the pleadings to state a valid claim on which the plaintiff could prevail, it should do so, but a district court may not rewrite a petition to include claims that were never presented, Barnett v. Hargett, 174 F.3d 1128, 1133 (10th Cir. 1999), or construct the plaintiff's legal arguments for him, Small v. Endicott, 998 F.2d 411, 417-18 (7th Cir. 1993), or "conjure up questions never squarely presented" to the court, Beaudett v. City of Hampton, 775 F.2d 1274, 1278 (4th Cir. 1985). The requirement of liberal construction does not mean that the court can ignore a clear failure in the pleading to allege facts which set forth a claim currently cognizable in a federal district court. Weller v. Dep't of Soc. Servs., 901 F.2d 387 (4th Cir. 1990).

Background and Discussion

Plaintiff provides very little information for the Court to consider. In the "Statement of Claim" section of his complaint, Plaintiff writes:

On 5/29/2003 the State of South Carolina's Private Investigator "James Cheeks" duly sworn under AFFIDAVIT that the plaintiff listed in this claim, violated the criminal laws of the STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA. Henry McMaster is the Attorney General for the STATE of SOUTH CAROLINA and therefore liable in this claim.

Complaint at 2. In terms of relief, Plaintiff requests monetary damages, and "criminal (sic) charges all null; void; Immediate Release from the STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTION."

Complaint at 5.

According to the South Carolina Department of Corrections website, Plaintiff is serving a ten-year sentence for armed robbery.¹ Plaintiff does not allege that he has successfully challenged his conviction. The Supreme Court has held that in order to recover damages for imprisonment in violation of the constitution, the imprisonment must first be successfully challenged. See Heck v. Humphrey, 512 U.S. 477 (1994).

We hold that, in order to recover damages for allegedly unconstitutional conviction or imprisonment, or for other harm whose unlawfulness would render a conviction or sentence invalid, . . . a § 1983 plaintiff must prove that the conviction or sentence has been reversed on direct appeal, expunged by executive order, declared invalid by a state tribunal authorized to make such a determination, or called into question by a federal court's issuance of a writ of habeas corpus, 28 U.S.C. § 2254. A claim for damages bearing that relationship to a conviction or sentence that has not been so invalidated is not cognizable under § 1983.

Id. at 486-87; See also Edwards v. Balisock, 520 U.S. 641 (1997)

¹ See <https://sword.doc.state.sc.us/incarceratedInmateSearch/>, accessed Sept. 3, 2010.

(the preclusive rule of Heck extended to § 1983 claims challenging procedural deficiencies which necessarily imply the invalidity of the judgement). The United States Supreme Court states that "when a state prisoner seeks damages in a § 1983 suit, the district court must consider whether a judgment in favor of the plaintiff would necessarily imply the invalidity of his conviction or sentence; if it would, the complaint must be dismissed unless the plaintiff can demonstrate that the conviction or sentence has already been invalidated." Heck, 512 U.S. at 487. This is known as the "favorable termination" requirement. See Wilson v. Johnson, 535 F.3d 262 (4th Cir. 2008). Under Heck v. Humphrey, 512 U.S. 477 (1994), "[r]elease from prison is not a remedy available under 42 U.S.C. § 1983." Habeas corpus is the exclusive remedy for a state prisoner who challenges the fact or duration of his confinement and seeks immediate or speedier release. Preiser v. Rodriguez, 411 U.S. 475 (1973).

Because the plaintiff has not demonstrated or alleged that he has successfully challenged the lawfulness of his state court convictions, this complaint should be dismissed for failure to state a claim on which relief may be granted.²

² Because a right of action has not yet accrued, the limitations period will not begin to run until the cause of action accrues. See Benson v. New Jersey State Parole Bd., 947 F. Supp. 827, 830 & n. 3 (D.N.J. 1996) (following Heck v. Humphrey, "[b]ecause a prisoner's § 1983 cause of action will not have arisen, there need be no concern that it might be barred by the relevant statute of limitations."); and Snyder v. City of Alexandria, 870 F. Supp. 672,

Recommendation

The District Court should dismiss the complaint in the above-captioned case without prejudice and without issuance and service of process for failure to state a claim on which relief may be granted. See Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 324-25 (1989); Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519 (1972); and 28 U.S.C. § 1915A (as soon as possible after docketing, district courts should review prisoner cases to determine whether they are subject to summary dismissal). Plaintiff's attention is directed to the important notice on the next page.
